Inactivation of Bacillus subtilis spores by high hydrostatic pressure. High hydrostatic pressure (HHP) treatment is emerging as an innovative and alternative method to inactivate various pathogenic microorganisms such as viruses, bacteria, parasites and fungi. HHP alone can be used for the inactivation of B. subtilis spores and the combination of HHP with the surface treatment with EDTA and HHP was evaluated. The most effective pressure was 300 MPa for 90 s followed by treatments of 300 MPa for 60 s and 360 MPa for 60 s. This could be attributed to two main reasons: firstly, the increase in the inactivation rate by combination treatments with HHP and EDTA in these pressure/time combinations. Secondly, the capability of HHP to damage the structure of the spores, as indicated by the difference between the values of the activity of the spores measured before and after treatment. Q: deploying my asp.net mvc app to godaddy shared hosting I have a website that I need to host on a godaddy shared hosting plan. I want to use microsoft MVC framework for the website. I understand that I need to include a reference of the mvc dll in the project file to allow the webhost server to load the mvc DLL in the bin/debug folder. However, when I am selecting the framework option in visual studio, I am not seeing MVC listed as an option.
